Maple Lake Lumber: Where each and every client is appreciated

By Brenda Erdahl

Maple Lake Lumber Co. has loyally served the community of Maple Lake for more than 55 years and it's their dedicated, knowledgeable staff and loyal customers that have made it possible.

"A small-town business like us wouldn't be around without our loyal customers, contractors and employees. Thank you," said Brad Hennen.

Located at 120 Oak Ave. South in Maple Lake, Maple Lake Lumber salesmen have more than 150 years of combined experience to offer new and repeat clients. Likewise, many of the contractors Maple Lake Lumber works with have been with the company for more than two decades.

Customers return time and again for specialized construction knowledge, quality products and competitive prices.

Construction specialists

When you visit Maple Lake Lumber you have the choice of one of seven construction specialists who will help you plan, design and estimate the cost of your project.

Daryl Hennen has been around the longest with 58 years under his belt and no one knows the business better.

Next to Hennen when it comes to experience is Tom Neu. He joined Maple Lake Lumber 30 years ago and has built a solid reputation for himself.

Scott Carriveau has been with the lumber yard 28 years and Jeff Reilley 27 years. Reilley specializes in window repair besides being a salesman. If someone has a problem with their window or patio door, or needs parts, he can order and explain how to install and remedy the problem.

Brad Hennen started building pole sheds for the lumber company in 1999 and now is the store's post frame building specialist.

Ed Vinkemeyer joined the crew in 2001 and the newest salesman, Chad Shoberg in 2018.

"You know you are doing something right when your employees are staying for so long," Kathy Hennen said.

In addition to salesmen, Mike Lauer, Pete Piram and Travis Erger man the front counter and are often the first people customers see when they walk in the door. Lauer has been with Maple Lake Lumber since 1971 and is also in charge of receiving inventory. Erger is in charge of inventory and takes customers orders.

A couple more men loading and unloading inventory and several experienced drivers make up the lumber yard's 20-member staff.

If anyone is interested in joining the Maple Lake Lumber family, they currently have a full time opening for a truck driver and an outside laborer to load and unload trucks with a forklift. Kathy Hennen said she is also looking for someone who has accounting and human resources knowledge to help in the office. Those hours can be flexible. If interested, stop by the lumber yard and fill out an application.

What they do

Maple Lake Lumber supplies materials for big and small projects, for do-it-yourself types or as packages that include contractor services. Maple Lake Lumber works with some of the best contractors around.

"Some of our contractors have been with us for years. A few have been with us since we bought the business," Kathy said.

On their website maplelakelumber.com customers can look at a variety of building products including doors, windows, moldings, stair parts, decking, siding and hardware. If you are more of a hands-on shopper, visit their showroom at their main building at 120 Oak Ave. South in Maple Lake to get a better look and feel.

Showroom

The showroom offers a peek at what your future home could look like with different selections of interior and exterior siding with shiplap finishes, roofing, windows, patio doors, exterior doors, interior doors, moldings and decking. The deck display itself is composed of several different types of decking material and railing styles, including round spindle, square posts, aluminum and composite, so customers can see what each material looks like on an actual deck.

"They can come here and see exactly what they will be getting. Customers can crank out the windows, walk through the doors or compare boards and trim in pine, maple, oak, and poplar and decide which one they like best. Sometimes it comes down to favoring how the grain looks in one piece of wood over another."

Maple Lake Lumber's experienced salesmen are always on hand with their specialized construction knowledge waiting to answer questions and offer advice. At the same time, the lumber yard's prices are competitive and the materials they sell are all high quality.

Overstock discounts

Maple Lake Lumber has a selection of overstock items that they are willing to sell at discounted prices. The items, especially windows and doors, come from projects where the customer changed their mind, or the item was ordered in the wrong wood, color or size. These items are put into overstock and sold at a reduced price.

"If you're looking to replace a window or door at a bargain price, come in and ask and a salesperson can show you what we have," Kathy encouraged.

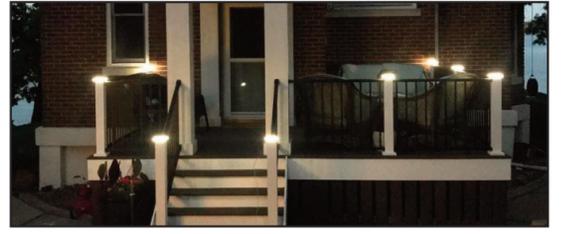

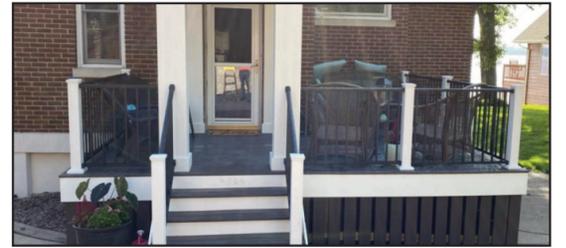

"We are hoping to post overstock items on the company's Facebook site."

Building is back

"The building industry has definitely picked up again and that feels good," Kathy said. Maple Lake Lumber serves customers all over the state of Minnesota. Many of their jobs are through word-of-mouth referrals. Others are locals who are looking to build an "up-north" get-away. It's all because of Maple Lake Lumber's stellar reputation.

A distinguished past

Kathy and Daryl have owned Maple Lake Lumber since 1992. In 1995 they added 8,300 additional square feet to the lumber yard's main building. In 2005 they added the showroom. Today the lumber yard has 15 buildings, most of them on the south side of the railroad tracks in Maple Lake. Twenty employees help to keep the business running and customers satisfied, and many of them are also dedicated community members serving on Maple Lake's Volunteer Fire Department. For more information on Maple Lake Lumber Co.'s products and services, stop in, give them a call at 320-963-3612, visit them on-line at Maplelakelumber.com, or like them on Facebook to get current sales or information. Store hours are 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and 8 a.m. until 12 p.m. on Saturdays.

The history of America's Independence Day

Few summertime holidays elicit as much excitement as the Fourth of July, also known as Independence Day in the United States. Each year, family, friends and revelers anticipate the arrival of the holiday so they can host barbecues, enjoy the sun, listen to their favorite summertime tunes, and commemorate the freedoms afforded by the monumental events that led to the holiday's establishment.

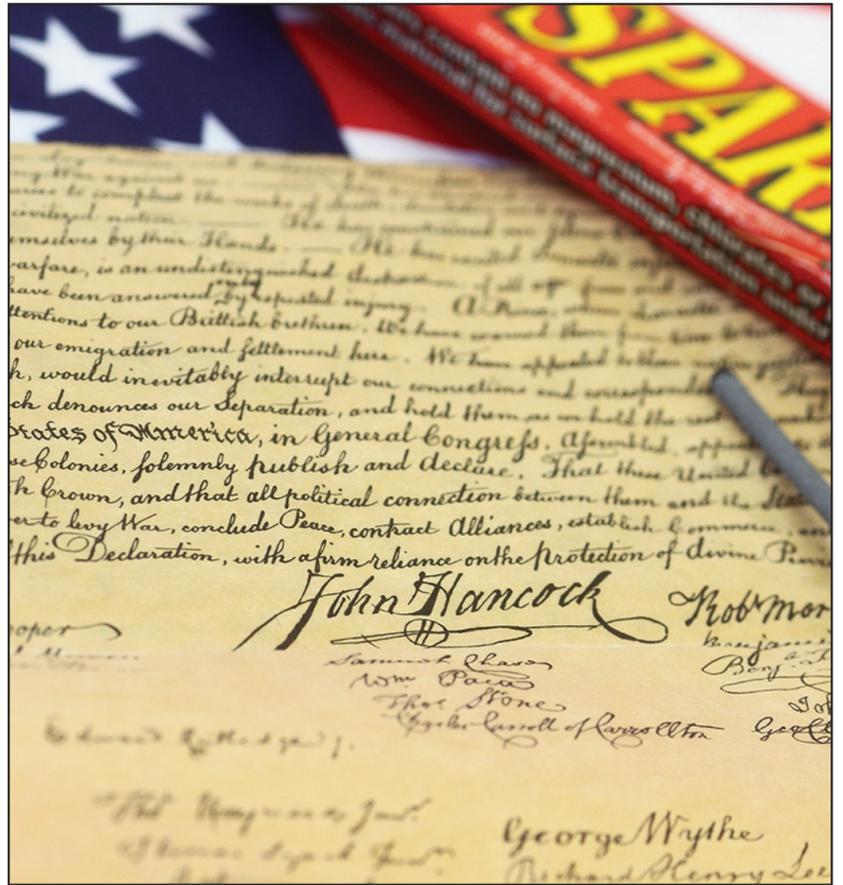

Independence Day became a federal holiday in 1941, but July 4th has stood as the birth of American independence for much longer. July 4th marks a pivotal moment in the American Revolution. According to PBS, the colonies were forced to pay taxes to England's King George III despite having no representation in the British Parliament. "Taxation without representation" became a battle cry and was one of several grievances colonists had with Great Britain.

Conflict between the colonies had been going on for at least a year before the colonies convened a Continental Congress in Philadelphia in June of 1776, says Military.com. On July 2, 1776, the Continental Congress voted in favor of independence from England. Two days later, on July 4, 1776, delegates from the 13 colonies adopted the Declaration of Independence.

The Declaration of Independence is an historic document drafted by Thomas Jefferson. Jefferson was considered the strongest and most eloquent writer of the declaration writing committee charged with putting the colonies' sentiments into words. Richard Henry Lee of Virginia was one of the first people to present a resolution for American independence, and his commentary was the impetus for the formal Declaration of Independence. A total of 86 changes were made to Jefferson's original draft until the final version was adopted. The signing of the document helped to solidify independence, and eventually lead to the formation of the United States of America.

A total of 56 delegates signed the document. Although John Hancock's signature is the largest, it did not hold more weight than the other signatures. Rather, rumor has it, Hancock signed it so large so that the "fat, old King could read it without his spectacles." However, the National Archives says it was also customary that, since Hancock was the president of the Continental Congress, he be the first person to sign the document centered below the text.

The Pennsylvania Evening Post was the first newspaper to print the Declaration of Independence on July 6, 1776. The first public readings of the Declaration were held in Philadelphia's Independence Square on July 8, 1776.

A digital detox can help maintain a healthy balance

Save the phone for fun selfies on vacation rather than for keeping connected on stresses from back home. (Photo submitted)

"Cleanse" diets are designed to help people clear their bodies of foods that might have an adverse effect on their health. Many people find such diets effective, prompting others to wonder if a digital cleanse, particularly while on vacation, might produce equally beneficial results.

Advances in technology make it possible for people to essentially be on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Free Wi-Fi is available at restaurants, rest stops and hotels and beckoning people to stay connected. In fact, according to information from Hotels.com, free hotel Wi-Fi has become the most sought after amenity at resorts and places to stay. But is there a price to pay by remaining so available to work and other outside influences while traveling for recreation?

Studies have shown that unplugging while on vacation — or at other times — can boost meaningful conversations and more. The study, "Can you connect with me now? How the presence of mobile communication technology influences face-to-face conversation quality," indicates devices can negatively impact closeness, connection and conversation quality, essentially interfering with human relationships.

Phones and other digital devices also force people to multitask. Evidence suggests that multitasking isn't all it's cracked up to be, leading to preventable errors and actually delaying the completion of tasks. A 2010 study from researchers in France found that the human brain can handle two complicated tasks relatively easily because it has two lobes that can divide responsibility equally between the two. Add a third task, however, and it can overwhelm the frontal cortex and increase mistakes. Trying to multitask on vacation can lead to stressful feelings and not being fully immersed in the experience.

Being connected while on vacation may leave a person dealing with stresses they normally would avoid until returning home. A study published in the journal Applied Research in Quality of Life indicates that stress accrued on vacation can cause people to feel like they had lower energy at work after returning from a relaxing vacation.

Taking a step back from their phones, tablets and laptops while vacationing can help people make the most of their getaways. Such a break can promote mindfulness, encourage people to try new things and lead to more meaningful conversations with travel companions.

Safety first when considering fireworks

Days at the beach. Family trips to the ice cream parlor. Vacations. These are just a few of the things that evoke the spirit of summer, a time of year when school is out and everyone seems to exhale a little and enjoy the warm weather.

Awe-inspiring fireworks displays also come to mind when imagining summer. Whether it's the Fourth of July or town gatherings along a local waterfront, fireworks displays are a big part of many people's summers. Unfortunately, the potential for accidents and injuries is high when fireworks are involved, particularly when displays aren't left to the professionals.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission notes that, on average, 280 people per day visit emergency rooms with fireworks-related injuries in the month around the July 4th holiday. More than 53 percent of fireworks-related injuries in 2017 were burns.

Fireworks are always best left to the professionals, and many communities have criminalized the use of fireworks by amateurs. But many people still light fireworks, and those that do should follow these safety precautions.

Here are some safety tips to use when handling fireworks:

- Never let kids handle fireworks. Fireworks, even sparklers, should never be given to children. The National SAFE KIDS campaign notes that sparklers burn at 2,000 F, which is hot enough to cause third-degree burns. So while they might seem like harmless symbols of summer, sparklers pose a significant threat to youngsters.
- Follow directions. Fireworks come with detailed directions for a reason, and that's to keep users safe. Strictly adhere to these directions and go over them with anyone who intends to light fireworks.
- Never use fireworks indoors. Fireworks are for outdoor use only. If it rains, do not try to light fireworks indoors and then throw them outside before they go off.
- Make sure spectators keep a safe distance. Do not light fireworks until all spectators are out of range should something go awry.
- Recognize that fireworks are not toys. They might be a marvel, but fireworks are not toys. As a result, they should never be aimed or thrown at another person, nor should they be lit or launched from a body part.
- Do not attempt to reignite malfunctioning fireworks. Attempting to reignite malfunctioning fireworks can lead to serious injury.
- Light fireworks on smooth, flat surfaces. When lighting fireworks, do so only on smooth, flat surfaces, making sure to direct them away from people, homes, dry leaves, and flammable materials. Fireworks are best left to the professionals. Consumers who insist on lighting their own should only do so with the utmost caution.

How to be safe in the sun this summer

A relaxing day outdoors soaking up some of the sun's rays is how many people prefer to spend their free time when the weather allows. While the very vision of a warm summer afternoon spent outdoors can invoke positive feelings, it's important that people take protective measures before going outside and continue to do so while they're out there.

According to the American Cancer Society, most skin cancers are the result of exposure to ultraviolet rays in sunlight.

UV rays are a type of radiation that do not have enough energy to penetrate deeply into the body. As a result, they primarily affect the skin. Overexposure to these rays can lead to skin cancer.

Protection from UV rays:

The ACS notes that there are no safe UV rays, so it's imperative that people take UV protection seriously. The following are some of the many ways to protect yourself while still enjoying sunny days outdoors.

- Go out at the right times of day. The ACS notes that UV rays are at their strongest in the middle of the day between the hours of 10 a.m. and 4 p.m., so staying inside during these hours can protect your skin. This is especially important in the spring and summer, as the ACS says UV rays are stronger during these seasons than other times of year.
- Employ the shadow test when going outside. It may not seem especially scientific, but the shadow test is a simple way for anyone to gauge how strong UV rays from the sun are at any given moment. According to the ACS, if your shadow is shorter than you, that means the sun's rays are at their strongest. This simple test can help people immediately determine how strong the sun's rays are, compelling them to be extra cautious if necessary.

• Apply sunscreen early and reapply often. The ACS recommends using sunscreens with broad spectrum protection that protect the skin from both UVA and UVB rays, and applying them before leaving the house and reapplying often while outdoors. When choosing a sunscreen, choose one with a minimum sun protection factor, or SPF, of 30. Understanding SPF can help people recognize the importance of reapplication. When an SPF 30 product is applied correctly, a person gets the equivalent of one minute of UVB ray exposure for each 30 minutes he or she spends in the sun. So one hour in the sun wearing SPF 30 sunscreen is the same as spending two minutes totally unprotected. Reapplying SPF 30 sunscreen often can ensure you are protected at all times.

• Wear a hat. Hats with a brim that is at least two to three inches all around protects vulnerable areas such as the eyes, forehead, nose, ears, and scalp. Choose a hat with a dark, non-reflective underside, as such a hat can lower the amount of UV rays that reach the face from reflective surfaces such as water.

Sun protection is important year-round, and especially so during spring and summer.
