Locally made Wave Armor shoreline products are the buzz

By Brenda Erdahl

Maple Lake may be a small town, but it has a treasure trove of hidden gems and one of those is Wave Armor floating docks.

A Rhino Inc. made product, this premium floating dock and port system is known throughout the United States and internationally as one of the hottest brands in shoreline products, and it's made right here in Minnesota, in our own backyard no less.

Not your grandpa's dock

This being the land of 10,000 lakes, Minnesotan's have long known the value of a good dock as a place to moor a boat and fish from, but Wave Armor brings that concept to a whole new level. With its modular design and many accessories, Wave Armor isn't just a dock, it's a sanctuary on the water. The folks at Wave Armor call it "living beyond the shoreline" and it refers to this idea of expanding your living space onto the water.

In the evolution of the dock, from wood to steel to aluminum, this is the next generation, said Director of Sales Ben Feldman. Crafted from rotomolded polyethylene, Wave Armor floating docks, boat ports and accessories are durable, functional, and aesthetically appealing. "This is not your grandfather's dock," Feldman said.

Personal Watercraft ports is where it all started. Inventor/ owner Rick Johanneck wanted to create a secure and convenient option for storing watercraft completely out of the water. That desire led to the development of Wave Armor ports, which today are legendary for their durability and ease of use. Never satisfied, Johanneck went on to create an entire ecosystem of modular floating docks that can be configured in any layout, big or small with a wide variety of accessories to meet any need.

Wave Armor shoreline products include a variety of accessories to expand your living space onto the water, including decorative flowerpots, benches, post covers, solar lights and more.

New products in 2024

Always changing and evolving, Wave Armor has developed several new products for 2024. The first is the all-new, patent-pending Power Launch System. The Power Launch makes launching your watercraft as easy as pushing a button on a remote. The battery-operated launch pushes your boat gently into the water and is compatible with Wave Armor ports.

year is the Pro Port 170 and 220. This port is designed for aluminum and fiberglass boats up to 20 feet in length, but what really makes it special is its Sea-Doo Switch compatibility. This optional conversion kit is tailor-made for docking the Sea-Doo Switch. The port coupled with the conversion kit has been well received in the Sea-Doo Switch community and has been recognized for its innovative design by factory representatives for Sea-Doo.

Making Wave Armor a total solution when it comes to shoreline products, is its recently released ProTect'R Canopies. When coupled with Wave Armor ports, it is the perfect solution to safeguard your boat, pontoon, or personal watercraft from the elements.

Crafted through Wave Armor's proprietary rotational molded process, the canopy features lightweight, robust trusses secured to a rigid aluminum frame ensuring durability against the elements. Its marine-grade canvas, WavebrellaTM, provides supreme protection against sun, rain and debris which will preserve the integrity of your watercraft over time. It boasts a 24-inch perimeter drape for enhanced coverage with fully screened ends for ventilation, telescopic columns for almost four feet of height adjustment and an oxidation-resistant design to ensure longevity and aesthetic appeal.

"The Protect'R Canopy is a game-changer in marine protection," Feldman said. "It combines cutting-edge design with durable materials, offering boat, pontoon, and personal watercraft owners a solution that not only shields their watercraft but does so with style and adaptability."

Epitome of innovation

Standing as the epitome of Wave Armor's innovation is the most advanced port of its kind, the Wave Armor Pontoon Port. This groundbreaking product was born from five years of dedicated research and development. It's patent-pending design ensures the entire pontoon stays elevated and protected; it's flared entrance with self-centering guides is heavy duty and user friendly for hassle free docking; it has an adjustable bow stop and cushioned rollers for precise alignment during storage and a durable rotomolded shell crafted with marine-grade EPS for maintenance-free, high density polyethylene construction which has been foam filled.

Made in Maple Lake

All Wave Armor products are made at Rhino, Inc.'s stateof-the-art facility in Maple Lake's Industrial Park and are shipped all over the United States and internationally.

Find a dealership

Locally, Anchor Dock and Lift in Annandale is a Wave Armor dealer, and there are many more throughout the state. Visit www.wavearmor. com and click the dealer locator link to find the most convenient location for you. Wave Armor's products can also be found online, and they make great gifts for birthdays, Valentine's Day, Mother's Day, and other occasions.

"After you make that initial investment, you can just keep adding, piece by piece. It is the gift that keeps on giving," Feldman said.

The secret is in its modular design that allows easy layout expansion or design changes whenever customers see fit. Wave Armor shoreline products are designed to grow with representatives are available to help. Johanneck's own phone number is listed on the company's website as a resource to customers. That speaks volumes about the confidence he has in his product, Feldman said.

Owner/inventor

It has been Johanneck's commitment to product development and ultimately living the brand that has made Wave Armor the hottest brand in the marine industry today. Johanneck continues to have a burning desire to expand, grow and make his products even better.

"We're never content," Feldman said when speaking to Rick's commitment.

Family business

Rhino, Inc., parent to Wave Armor and multiple other brands, is at its core, a family business. It's Johanneck's passion for perfection and inventive spirit that drives the company forward with new, innovative designs meant to make life easier while his daughter Jennifer Johanneck-Eystad leads the company with her strategic vision as

A Litchfield native, Johanneck originated Rhino, Inc. in 1995. Since then, the rotational molding shop, what was once a small rotational molding shop that has now transformed into a 285k square foot manufacturing facility, has a portfolio of products for every season. It's family of brands include Otter, Beavertail, Rhino Tuff Tanks, American Roto Tool and of course Wave Armor.

Celebrate St. Patrick's Day in Maple Lake

By Brenda Erdahl

Celebrate St. Patrick's Day in Maple Lake on Saturday, March 16. This Chamber of Commerce sponsored event is fun for the entire family and includes a craft fair, parade, coronation, 5K run and more.

The day begins with the annual Spring Craft Fair at Maple Lake Elementary School from 9 a.m. - 2 p.m. The fair offers a selection of quality items by area crafters including jewelry, clothing, fine arts, housewares, plush items, sweet treats, crafts and more. There is also a bake sale and lunch is available. Every year this event fills up with vendors from near and sometimes far away.

Race day registration begins at 8:30 a.m. in the Maple Lake High School for the Irish Scamper. The 5K race starts promptly at 11 a.m. at the intersection of Birch Ave and Division Street in downtown Maple Lake. The race will follow the same route as years past, a two-lap course through the "old town" of Maple Lake. Longsleeved T-shirts will be given to racers on a first come-first-serve basis. Pre-registered runners are guaranteed a 2024 T-shirt. More information, including pre-registration opportunities can be found at raceberryjam.

Last year's race attracted close to 140 athletes, which was a bit fewer than normal due to cold, snowy conditions. In previous years, when it's been warmer, the race has attracted closer to 500.

Nick Lind, of Maple Lake has been the overall winner the last two years. Last year's top female finisher was 15-year-old Addie Thomes of Redwood Falls.

The race annually draws many local runners as well as runners from the metro and surrounding communities. Athletes of all ages are comfortable competing here. Last year, the oldest competitor was 79-yearold Don Benke of Wayzata and the youngest to compete was six-year-old Vivian Dircks of Annandale. There is also an option to walk the 3-mile course which is very popular as well.

Proceeds for the race go towards the Maple Lake High School Track and Field Program.

The highlight of the event, the Grand Day Parade, begins at 1:30 p.m. on Division Street East by the Community Park. The route goes west on Division Street, turns south on Maple Avenue and East on 1st Street by the American Legion. The parade ends on 1st Street West by Oak Avenue South.

The parade will feature a Grand Marshal, Commodore, royalty from a variety of communities along with Maple Lake's 2023 royalty and 2024 candidates. Many businesses will be represented in the parade as will the Maple Lake High School Marching band and enjoy the antics of the Maple Lake Washerwomen. Throughout the morning and into the afternoon, a variety of food vendors will be located on Birch Avenue where festival goers will find an assortment of snacks and goodies.

The 2024 Maple Lake royalty will be crowned after the parade, at 5:30 p.m. during the coronation ceremony at the Maple Lake High School Auditorium. Tickets are $6 at the door but visitors can receive a $1 discount if they bring a food shelf item. Each candidate will have a box outside the door and whoever collects the most food will win a prize.

"We try to make the night fun with lots of contests within the contest, so it gives people a lot of opportunities to win, you know, whether they get a crown or not," organizer Joy Navarro

There are five candidates running for Little Miss Maple Lake, one candidate running for Junior Princess and two candidates running for Miss Maple Lake.

Don't forget to pick up your $2 St. Patrick's Day button for a chance to win $100. You don't need to be present to win, just look for the winning numbers published in the Maple Lake Messenger and online at www. maplelakechamber.com. If you haven't bought yours yet, pick one up at the following local businesses: Maple Lake Messenger, Lake Region/Cenex, BP Amoco, ML Lumber, Spooky Brew, Maple Lake Wine & Spirits and Subway. Money raised from button sales goes toward financing paid parade entries. This year's button was designed by Sue Hughes. Buttons will also be sold during the parade.

Throughout the day local businesses and civic organizations will also be offering St. Patrick's Day specials.

Raise money for the local track and field team and get some exercise at the Irish Scamper, part of the St. Patrick's Day fun.

Many St. Patrick's Day traditions are not from Ireland

St. Patrick's Day is made special by various traditions. Everything from dyeing major cities' rivers green to parades to enjoying green foods has become part of the pageantry of St. Patrick's Day.

The next time you raise a green beer to your lips, you may wonder which traditions are authentically Irish and which ones were created by regions with an abundance of Irish immigrants. Surprisingly, many seemingly Irish traditions likely began elsewhere.

First parade

It would be accurate to assume that various elements associated with St. Patrick's Day began where St. Patrick, the patron saint of Ireland, once resided, including the first St. Patrick's Day parade. However, some of the first parades held in St. Patrick's honor took place in two North American cities, New York and Boston, that had high numbers of Irish immigrants. But historians say the first ever St. Patrick's Day parade was actually held in St. Augustine, Florida in 1601, a year after gunfire blasts were used to honor the saint. The parade may have been at the request of an Irish priest living there at the time.

Corned beef and cabbage

What would St. Patrick's Day be without an authentic meal of corned beef and cabbage? This dish is not so authentic after all, and actually is an American innovation. Ham and cabbage was widely eaten in Ireland, but corned beef was a cheaper alternative found in America by immigrants. Therefore, corned beef became a staple of poor Irish immigrants living in lower Manhattan. The salted meat was boiled three times to remove some of the brine and make it palatable.

Green beer

Green beer is not an Irish custom, but an American one. The most common beer consumed in Ireland is Guinness, which is dark brown to black in color, making green dye useless in Irish pubs since it would be largely invisible in the stout.

Golf tournaments

One would not associate golf with St. Patrick's Day unless they reside in Nome, Alaska. Golf is a popular Irish pastime, and each year the Bering Sea Ice Classic Golf Tournament takes place right around St. Patrick's Day. Bright green golf balls are used, and breaks are factored in between holes to warm up at local bars.

Wearing green

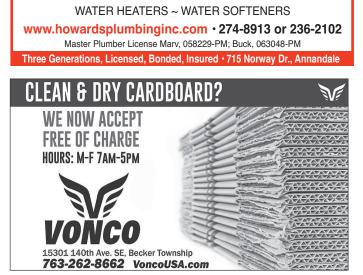

According to The Christian Science Monitor, individuals in the United States started wearing green to celebrate St. Patrick's Day in the early 1700s. They believed it "made one invisible to leprechauns." The official color for the holiday used to be a sky blue known as "St. Patrick's Day Blue," established during the reign of King George III.

In addition to these traditions, specialty items, such as coffees and shakes, also are very popular. However, most of these do not have origins on the Emerald Isle, either. Yet, no matter where traditions began, there's no denying St. Patrick's Day has long inspired celebra-ome Easter Sunday, eager children wake up to see if the Easter Bunny has visited their homes. For many families, Easter would not be the same without an annual egg hunt. From chocolate confections to money-filled plastic shells to colorful, hand-decorated hard-boiled eggs, the Easter Bunny (and his parental helpers) hide eggs all around.

As with many traditions, people may engage in the festivities without really understanding the origins behind the fun. It can be interesting to unearth just how such egg hunts were hatched.

As with many religious traditions, Easter egg coloring and hunts trace their origins to pre-Christian societies. These societies developed rituals surrounding nature, the seasons and more. Some traditions were adapted to link them to the Christian faith. Eggs held associations with new life and spring. However, early Christians turned the egg into a symbol of the Resurrection and the empty shell became a representation of Christ's tomb. Eggs also were important components of the Easter holiday, as they were prohibited (like meat) during Lent. But on Easter, fasting ended and eggs were a part of Easter celebrations, particularly for the poor who couldn't afford meat.

There are two widely known accounts of the origins of Easter egg hunts. The religious version has Protestant reformer Martin Luther organizing hunts for his congregation. The men would hide the eggs for women and children to find, which mirrors Resurrection accounts in the Bible in which women discovered Christ's empty tomb. Another account traces the tradition to the Dutch tale of the "Oschter Haws" ("Osterhase" in German), which was a hare that laid eggs in the grass. Children would build and decorate nests for the eggs and wait to see if they would be populated, according to Discovery.com. This tradition became popular in America with the arrival of Dutch and German settlers in Pennsylvania in the 1700s.

By the 20th century, decorated Easter nests were replaced with baskets, and Osterhase was more affectionately known as the Easter Bunny, who chose to leave eggs as well as treats and candy. Easter celebrations continued to marry both the religious and secular to form many of the customs
